Level 44: Access Adjustment to Increase and Maintain Energy

Maintaining Your High Vibration in Group Situations

We are getting more information about the new reality which invites us as seekers to what we perceive would be freedom. It offers new worlds full of mystery in which each of us can experience ourselves in unsuspected ways. This is one of the biggest revelations for us because, with all the new work, we were becoming more and more hermit like.

The Art of Observation- Learning the way to filtering energy (so you are not taking in crap) and absorbing and storing this energy in our physical body. In situations in the past, group events would physically drain us of our personal energy and shift it to the group's vibration. It takes place in the reality of our everyday life. It is practiced and it consists of an extremely careful and specialized handling of ordinary reality with its final aim the penetration into this separate reality. We as seekers must develop these skills.

In the past, we treated the everyday world as a battleground in which every act and every interaction with fellow humans using the same strategies as warfare. The Art of Observation is the strategic control of your own conduct. Its field of action is the interaction that takes place between human beings. The seeker or observer immerses themselves in the flow of energy, using it to strengthen the spirit, gain energy and carry the self beyond the limits of personal history.

The observer quietly uses and must learn to use many skills and must be adept at shifting or changing strategies at the drop of a hat. An observer needs to practice in order to be able to apply these techniques in every aspect of their life, converting every element, including self and personal weaknesses into their energetic goals.

The true observer well knows the difference between judgment and observation, between paying attention and thinking. If we wish to achieve our energetic goals, we must first observe different situations. We must silently perceive varying situations in order to know what happens. If our observation is effective, we will become familiar with many situations or routines, allowing us to know how to react to any situation.

When observing, there is not room for thought or internal dialogue. Everything is direct and simple: merely observe what is there. Observation is one of the basic elements upon which everything is constructed along with unusual behavior.

This method is also the most efficient way to interact with people in everyday society. Since your strategy is based on what you observe, not on what is thought, since the perception of reality widens and since all acts are motivated by strategy instead of whim, the observers find themselves in a good position in the realm of human affairs with respect to other people.

Many people have trouble imagining a separate reality. In actual practice, going into other realities might include experiencing unusual psychic phenomena – such as the dreaming body, communication without words, or perceiving living beings energy fields. It also can include the realization that we are not condemned to live our lives under the yoke of our egos, that it is indeed possible to reinvent ourselves. We realize we can create new and a more healthy way to experience emotions; that the order we want in our personal world can be found within ourselves-not influenced by external factors such as inflation, world crises or the opinions of others.

All of this is relevant to the seeker. Its practice endows us with very powerful tools for operating more efficiently in everyday society, propelled and sustained by an impulse that comes from somewhere else, from the otherness. This force, properly directed, can ultimately be devastating in a world where people are only familiar with the right side of reality.

The way you progress is through observation, strategic control of your acts, pursuing the self, the most efficient control of matters in the everyday world and achieving efficiency of your movement. It is the establishment of a bridge from this side of reality to arrive at the other self.

We alter and strengthen various energetic centers that assist you with the flow and storage of energy. We will provide exercises that will help you learn the skills needed with this level. Diane and I cannot believe how different it is to go out in society such as malls, grocery store, sporting events or just driving when there is a lot of traffic. This level can be done without any other level work. Cost $888.00 (Cost is including the initial two day altering and adjusting plus 5 scheduled re-adjustments and balancing). There are NO pre-requisites for this work... EVERYONE – ANYWHERE would benefit greatly from this work.

...and the number 44 is extremely significant for this work... not only is 44 a master number but $4+4=8$ signifying infinity.... 44 also stands for: impeccability, desire with insight, wisdom with reason, intensity, conviction, adeptship, heroism, self-control, discipline, controlled energy focus
