"ORIGINAL PLACE"

Luther Burbank, the botanical genius, presented hundreds of new varieties of fruits and vegetables to the world. He had a simple method for testing a new fruit he believed was particularly flavoursome. Asking his friends to close their eyes, he gave them a slice of the new fruit. Their reactions to the new taste supplied helpful information to Burbank. Since it was a new fruit, the friends had to react from an original place within themselves, not from mere memories of other fruits they had eaten.

Each person has an original place within himself, untouched and uninfluenced by past experiences. It may be unfound as yet, but it is there. This original place is totally self-governing, depending upon nothing outside itself. It knows instantly the difference between the taste of truth and what conditioned memory labels as the truth. It knows what is truly right for itself, receiving that alone, declining all else.

Whoever lives from his original place receives its unique refreshment all day long." THE DAILY GURU

Is it June already????? That is such a rhetorical questions, huh? Of course it is... it is just like calling someone at their home, having them answer the phone and saying, are you home? Oh well, at least the question got this newsletter started.....

The topic this month is "Learning to Be Yourself".... "Being Comfortable With Who You Are"... "Accepting Who You Are".... We could go on and on, but we think you know what we are going to talk about.

Have you ever really accepted your own talents and not tried to be someone else? Do you ever look at anyone or everyone else's talents and think they are better than yours or you can do what they do better than they can? For example purposes, I am going to use us.. Loren and DianeWe have so many folks that meet us... and tell us that they can do what we do or will ask us to teach them what we do. Keep in mind, these folks have their own businesses, their own talents, but somehow think what we do... they need to do, also. Don't get me wrong... what we do is not proprietary, but the way we do it is unique to us. Do you think that we got up one morning and decided, "Wow, I want to do something really, really weird... Something I can't prove, Something that isn't written about... Something folks will judge me for.... Something, once we've done it will have some people trying to change it.... Something that is so strange it is hard to describe... Something we really can't talk to our families about?????" Well, in case you haven't figured it out... NO, we didn't get up one morning and decide to do our work. But... Diane can see things... lots of things...there are times when she has trouble telling what is physical from non-physical (alive or dead)... it is a talent. Loren generates a great deal of energy (besides having lots of other talents)... his energy is so intense that there has been times he has started cars with dead batteries just by holding his hands over the battery. His hands hurt a lot because of this energy... but it is a talent. Put the two talents together... and voila, you have our business. It takes both of us... it would be impossible for one physical being to have both talents in a physical body... it is too intense. But some folks think... "Wow, what they do have, I want ... I want to do what they do"...Don't get me wrong, our work comes from a plane beyond the Universal Grid... it belongs to the Universe...not to us. Some of the folks I am talking about have a need to be the "Pie"... the whole wheel... the Big Kahuna. They want what they do, what we do, what you do.... They want to be the "One Stop Shop". They spend their time taking yet another class, another training to be the "total" instead of realizing that we are each spokes that all together make up more than the TOTAL. We have seen people with pages and pages and pages of "metaphysical resumes"... ones who keep looking and looking for the next best thing since sliced bread. We each have our own talents... bring our own talents to the wheel... we are all the spokes and work co-operatively. Folks seem to be scared of either looking at their own talents (or thinking they don't have any) or thinking everything outside of themselves is better and, of course, because it is outside themselves and another person is successful or talented at it "I can do that" instead of looking to see what their own talent is.

Again, we are not talking proprietary talents -- what we do is not, but how we do it is unique to us. We were told in the very beginning it would take two physical individuals because the intensity, etc. was way too much for a single 3rd dimensional physical being.. No matter how highly "developed" or high vibration they were.

Let's look at this another way... let's say we really, really admire our chiropractic friend. This person has magic hands and can facilitate healing beyond the norm. So.... we get up tomorrow morning and decide we are going to do this work... since this person's work looks easy... why don't we just "do it"..... You get the gist of it, right????? We could do harm by not knowing what we were doing. Another friend is a CFO of a large organization... We really admire how this person manipulates numbers.. looks at the market and can make money—hand over fist. Looks easy...so tomorrow we get up to be CFOs (chief financial officers)..... NOT!!! You don't want us managing the finances of your company. Just because the person whose talent it is makes it look easy, doesn't make it easy. We could do harm or bankrupt the company by not knowing how to do it correctly. This isn't our talent.

So what are your talents??? How do you figure out what they are??? Talents are sometimes your purpose work... sometimes not. Talents are something that just come naturally. You may have to get training to improve them, but they are still innate.. they are “in” you. What makes your heart sing???? What do you like to do??? Don’t grab someone’s talent because you can’t figure out your own or don’t think they are worthwhile... that someone else’s talents are better than yours. Loren can paint, draw, crochet... I (Diane can’t), but I can sew. My sister has one of the greenest thumbs I have ever seen... she can grow anything, anywhere... plants scream when they see me coming. I have a cousin that creates beautiful jewelry by stringing beads... I don’t have the patience for it. Our children make beautiful music on the violins... I know what a violin looks like, period. Are you getting this????? Look inside of you... claim your talent...

.....and then, we have individuals who whine and cry about not being able to see as well as Jane Doe does, hear as well as John Doe, feel like Harry Doe does, on and on and on. Each of you has psychic abilities... Everyone on the planet does. With the veil lifting, psychic talents are more and more prevalent. We heard the other day that there is a 3 year waiting list for metaphysical books to be published.... 3 years... can you imagine that????? People are waking up.... Now, all of us “get” to figure out our own way of seeing, hearing, sensing and knowing. I promise you this... it won’t be exactly like anyone else. It will be unique to you. The problem is, people read how someone else’s psychic talents work.. and they think that is the only way. Folks writing about “this is the only way to see, to feel, etc” reinforce this. What we as individuals get to do is to gather information on how others do it, by observing, by reading about, by talking about it, and by meditating. Then, you “get” to figure out how you see, feel, sense or know. The way you will be clairvoyant (seeing), clairaudient (hearing), clairsentient (sensing), or claircognizant (knowing) will be unique to you... perhaps (and this is probably the case).. You are already doing it. Again, everyone has one or more of these talents... you just have to settle down, breathe and realize that you will do your own talent exactly how you are supposed to.

The following is something we received via email: “I challenge you to take up the rod and become your highest potential as a human being here on earth. You alone will be the sole determiner of what that will look like. What is it that you wish to do with this?”

You are here on an important mission; you are here to awaken human awareness at the very core levels of being. You are here to lead by example. You are here to show others how it is to be done. Empower yourself and walk your talk. Take down the walls. Allow you to express yourself in ways that you have never done before. The choice is yours.”
The Second Choice

I guess that is about it for this month.
“See” you next month.... Loren and Diane
